To ask the Minister for Health the number of residential places available for the treatment of persons with drug addiction problems by local health office area in tabular form

Dear Deputy Curran,

The Health Service Executive has been requested to reply directly to your above Parliamentary Question which you submitted to the Minister for Health for response. I have examined the matter and the following outlines the position:

The current National Drugs Strategy "Reducing Harm, Supporting Recovery A health-led response to drug and alcohol use in Ireland 2017-2025" identifies that since 2007 the number of residential beds has increased significantly, largely due to the increased provision of beds in community-based residential facilities. Additional HSE funding over the past number of years has resulted in an increased number of residential addiction beds providing treatment and aftercare services. The most recent figures available (including private provision) estimate current provision at 793 residential beds, comprising 19 inpatient unit detoxification beds, 127 community-based residential detoxification beds, 4 adolescent residential detoxification beds, 625 residential rehabilitation beds and 18 adolescent residential beds.

Access to all Tier 4 services is based on need rather than geographical location. Table 1 details the Community Health Organisation (CHO) area in which residential Tier 4 addiction services are located. The services listed are provided directly by the HSE or agencies that are in receipt of funding from the HSE.
