PQ 14921/20

To ask the Minister for Health when St. Brigid's Hospital, Carrick-on-Suir will reopen as a unit for respite and palliative care.

Dear Deputy Kelly,

The Health Service Executive (HSE) has been requested to reply directly to you in the context of the above Parliamentary Question, which was submitted to the Minister for Health for response.

I have reviewed that matter and the following composite reply is the current position.

St Brigid's Hospital is a short stay unit with 16 beds including 3 palliative, 2 respite and 11 convalescent beds. The HSE operated activity at the hospital and the design and layout of the hospital is largely reflective of a small hospital from the time period that it was built (1837). The older and main part of the hospital is comprised of three floors, with resident bedrooms on the ground and first floor.

As part of the South East response to the Covid-19 public health emergency, St. Brigid's was designated as a Covid-19 step down facility to support flow from the acute hospitals in the region. As the demand for Covid-19 step down beds was not required to the level as predicted during the initial Covid-19 pandemic, South East Community Healthcare (SECH) utilised the staffing resource from St. Brigid's to meet demands in community healthcare services. South East Community Healthcare appreciates the commitment of the excellent team of staff associated with St. Brigid's in taking up redeployment in Covid-19 related roles in community healthcare services.

As part of health services resumption in a Covid environment, planning, prevailing public health guidance and social distancing requirements are having an impact on the manner in which we are delivering services, particularly in both short stay and residential services. There is an absolute requirement to ensure that strict infection, prevention and control measures are implemented across services and that services are delivered in appropriate physical environments that enable adequate isolation and social distancing measures at all times. As part of planning for services resumption, there is a need to assess all services and the physical environments that those services are operating in, to determine what actions are required, if any, to enable the safe resumption of services, in line with current guidance.

Substantial refurbishment is required in order to resume short stay services at St. Brigid's Hospital in line with safer, better, healthcare and infection, prevention and control standards. Unfortunately, the current premises are not conducive to support the level of refurbishment and adaptations required to resume short stay inpatient services at St. Brigid's Hospital.

It is important to note that people in the Carrick-on-Suir area who require convalescent, respite and/or palliative care services are being supported in alternative settings in the South Tipperary area including HSE St Theresa's Hospital Clogheen and HSE Cluain Arann in Tipperary town.

In terms of future developments, it is planned to develop a 50-bed replacement build of St Anthony's Unit in Clonmel with building expected to be completed in 2023. SECH are currently engaged in discussions with the Tipperary Hospice Home Care Team relevant to incorporating the provision of palliative care beds into these future development plans. In the interim, it is planned that SECH will provide 2 additional palliative care beds in the existing St. Anthony's Unit in Clonmel. In addition, in conjunction with the Home Care Team, SECH will if required provide palliative care beds in private nursing homes in the Carrick on Suir area. This provision of palliative care beds in private nursing homes in the area will be offered to families, on a case by case base, where the particular family circumstances require such a response. It should also be noted that for a number of individuals and their families, the preference is to remain in their own home for the duration of their palliative care, and the HSE will continue to provide home based supports as appropriate. This is particularly relevant at this time with the ongoing Covid-19 pandemic. The priority for SECH is to ensure that patients and families access the right supports at the right time and SECH will continue to ensure that patients and families access these services.

In a Covid-19 environment, the HSE is striving to provide safe services to protect patients, services users and our staff delivering care.

I trust that this is of assistance. Should you have any further queries please do not hesitate to contact this office.

Yours sincerely,

Ms. Barbara Murphy
