Increasing flu vaccination uptake in health and care workers

November 2022

Flu vaccine for health and care workers

Health and care workers can get the flu vaccine free of charge through their GP or pharmacy, or at a local flu clinic.

Every year the flu vaccine is offered to health and care workers to protect them and to prevent the spread of influenza to vulnerable residents and service users. Health and care workers should get the flu vaccine to protect themselves, their residents or service users, and their families.

Health and care workers are 10 times more likely to get flu than the general public, and 1 in every 5 health and care workers get flu each year.

In healthcare settings with high levels of flu vaccination we know there are lower rates of flu-like illness, reduced hospitalisations and death from flu in people aged 65 and older, and less sick leave in health and care workers. It is important as many health and care workers get vaccinated to protect themselves and others this flu season.

Protect Yourself – Protect the People You Care for

It's flu season which means it's time for health and care workers to get their flu vaccine.

If you work in healthcare, your free flu vaccine is the best way to protect yourself and those around you from flu this winter. You can help prevent the spread of flu and save lives by getting vaccinated.

Healthcare workers can now book a free flu vaccine online.

You can also contact your GP or use HSE pharmacy finder for your child's free flu vaccine.
