| Drug                                                                             | Dose                                                         | Duration | +/- Notes                                                                                                                                                                                         |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------|----------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Treatment options for otitis externa, tympanic membrane intact                   |                                                              |          |                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| Gentisone HC ® ear drops (gentamicin and hydrocortisone)              | 2-4 drops into the affected ear every six to eight hours     |          | Aminoglycoside-containing eardrops not recommended ifperforation suspected (e.g.Gentisone ® / Genticin ® / Sofradex ®/ Betnesol N ® ) |
| OR Sofradex ®(framycetin, gramicidin,dexamethasone) ear drops | 2-3 drops into the affected ear every six to eight hours     |          |                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| OR Betnesol N ®(betamethasone and neomycin)                       | 2-3 drops into the affected ear every six to eight hours     | 3-7 days | As supply issues can arise with eardrops, where appropriate, state asuitable alternative on                                                                                               |
| OR Gentamicin ear drops                                                          | 2-3 drops into the affected ear every six to eight hours     |          | prescription if first choiceunavailable.                                                                                                                                                      |
| PLUS (if inflammation present):                                                  | 2-3 drops into the affected                                  |          |                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| Betnesol ® ear drops                                                  | ear every two to three hours, reducing frequency             |          |                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| (betamethasone)                                                                  | when control achieved                                        |          |                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| (Suspected) tympanic membrane perforation                                        |                                                              |          |                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| Ciprofloxacin                                                                    | 4 drops into the affectedear canal every twelvehours | 7 days   |                                                                                                                                                                                                   |

Acetic acid, e.g. EarCalm® (unlicensed) can be used for superficial swimmers ear infections.