6.0 Procedure for Workplace Rehabilitation - Employees not requiring on-going absence from work (See Algorithm 1)

Case Example:
An employee sustains a mild strain to their shoulder assisting a patient but the employee’s GP says they are fit for work if they can avoid heavy lifting for 2-3 days. The manager can reduce the manual handling task for to support this. However, if the discomfort doesn’t resolve they must refer to Occupational Health for further assessment and advice. (see algorithm 2)

6.1 All injuries and illness must be reported to the immediate line manager.
6.2 Following workplace injuries immediate first aid or medical attention must be provided, if required e.g. first aider, GP or the Emergency Department.
6.3 The incident management investigation must be completed and the incident reported on the National Incident Management System (NIMS) in line with the HSE Incident Management Framework.
6.4 The manager can refer to Algorithm 1 if the employee has a minor injury/illness and medical clearance to remain at work or return to work within a short period of time, and where short-term, simple reasonable accommodation has been requested.
6.5 The employee and manager must discuss and agree accommodations and the likely timeline for these. The Work Rehabilitation Plan form may be used for this purpose. See section 7.
6.6 If the supported accommodation is unsuccessful i.e. employee does not resume normal work tasks &/or hours within an expected time period, or if further specialist opinion is required, refer the employee to Occupational Health for medical assessment and recommendations.

7.0 Procedure for Workplace Rehabilitation - Employees with injuries or illnesses requiring on-going absence from work (See algorithm 2)

7.1 The employee must report all injuries and illness to the immediate line manager.
7.2 Following workplace injuries, immediate first aid or medical attention must be provided if required e.g. first aider, GP or the Emergency Department.
7.3 The incident management investigation must be completed and the incident reported on the National Incident Management System (NIMS) in line with the HSE Incident Management Framework.
7.4 Managing the sickness absence of any employee should be carried out in accordance with the HSE Managing Attendance Policy
7.5 The line manager and employee must stay in regular contact to ensure appropriate management, as per Managing Attendance Policy. See section 9 for further guidance regarding communication during absence from work.

7.6 The line manager should refer the employee to the Occupational Health service regarding the employee’s illness/injury, if appropriate, in accordance with the Managing Attendance Policy and Procedure.

7.7 If further information is required the manager may be asked by Occupational Health to provide further details or to complete the Job Demands form - See section 9.

7.8 The Occupational Health service may liaise with the employee’s own healthcare provider (with appropriate consent). The employee’s healthcare provider may be requested for their opinion of fitness for the job demands outlined.

7.9 The manager and the Occupational Health service should advise the employee about the HSE Employee Assistance Programme to ensure they are aware of support services during their absence and to support them during their rehabilitation.

7.10 Occupational Health may provide advice regarding the need for referral to other relevant health professionals, e.g. physiotherapy occupational therapy, specialists, etc. as indicated.

7.11 The Occupational Health Service will provide an opinion regarding fitness for work with or without the need for accommodations and if possible will include a likely timeframe for the accommodations and the schedule for review - See Section 9 for sample Occupational Health Report.

7.12 For employees on long-term sickness absence, whom Occupational Health have advised are medically fit to return to work, the manager and employee should engage to agree a Rehabilitation Plan, using the Work Rehabilitation Plan Form, with agreed timeframes. The plan should be developed through collaboration between the employee and manager, with advice from Occupational Health and other stakeholders. This plan will include:
  - The goals of the plan
  - Detail of implementation plan based on recommendations from Occupational Health
  - Detail of the work rehabilitation schedule
  - Agreement on information to be shared with co-workers
  - Details of any training required
  - Anticipated time frame and schedule for review of the plan

See Work Rehabilitation Plan form for this process – Section 9.2

7.13 Following return to work the rehabilitation plan must be reviewed formally on a regular basis as agreed by the employee and manager.

7.14 Where it is identified that an employee is not progressing and achieving goals as agreed in the Work Rehabilitation Plan, appropriate additional advice must be sought. A further Occupational Health review should be arranged and details of the process must be provided by the manager and employee.
7.15 If during any period of phased return the employee’s health is perceived, by the employee, the line manager or the Occupational Health Department, to be deteriorating, and there is a foreseeable risk to the employee or service, the employee may resume sick leave, and an urgent appointment should be made with the Occupational Health Service.

7.16 Recommended investigations or treatment must be organised via their treating medical practitioner, carried out within the public health service or through the employee’s private health insurance scheme.

7.17 If the employee disagrees with the content of the Occupational Health report they may provide further medical evidence to support their position. Such evidence will be provided at their own expense and within agreed timeframes.

7.18 Ongoing disagreement regarding medical assessment can be referred to the HSE Rehabilitation Case Manager in the HSE Workplace Health and Wellbeing Unit with employee consent. (Email hr.wellbeing@hse.ie).

7.19 The line manager will liaise with HR regarding the pay/leave arrangements which will apply to the rehabilitation period and will discuss these with the employee. This could include a variety of arrangements including a combination of time worked, annual leave, sick leave or unpaid leave.

8.0 Conclusion of Workplace rehabilitation

8.1 Workplace rehabilitation will conclude when the employee:

8.1.1 Resumes all the prescribed duties for the role to which they were appointed

8.1.2 Cannot resume all duties, but medically recommended restrictions can be accommodated on a permanent basis within this role by the service.

8.1.3 Following ongoing medical assessment by Occupational Health, is considered to gain minimal or no benefit from continued workplace rehabilitation.

8.1.4 Fails to engage in or comply with rehabilitation process. This will lead to the application of the Managing Attendance Policy.

8.2 In the event that the employee is unable to return to work in their substantive position, options for suitable alternative duties, or alternative employment options will be fully explored.

8.3 In certain circumstances, despite best efforts, the employee will not be fit or able to resume his/her current position and efforts at providing reasonable accommodations such as modifications to the role, or alternative employment options are not feasible or successful. In such situations, termination on grounds of medical incapacity/ill health may arise.

8.4 Occupational Health will advise if an employee has, in their opinion, reached Maximum Medical Improvement, and is permanently medically unfit for their role or any alternative role as outlined by the manager.
8.5 The manager should engage with the employee about the process to be followed and should seek advice from the Human Resources department as appropriate. The employee may be offered support through the Employee Assistance Programme.

8.6 For cases where the employee disputes the medical opinion of the Occupational Health Service, refer to sections 7.17 and 7.18.
