Dear Colleagues

Re: Update on the Social Workers Register

As you are aware it is a legal requirement that all social workers are registered. The Social Workers Registration Board has, to date, approved applications from over 3,260 Social Workers who are now listed on the Social Workers Register. The Register is available online at www.coru.ie and is publicly accessible.

All fully completed applications are now finalised. However a small number of applications remain to be finalised as applicants have not yet provided all the previously requested information. Applicants awaiting final determination of their application under the transitional arrangements by the Social Workers Registration Board can continue to use the title "Social Worker".

CORU will this week issue final requests for information to all outstanding applicants. The Social Workers Registration Board will shortly commence making final decisions on all outstanding applications. If applicants do not supply the requested information they will find themselves in a position where they may need to undertake an assessment of professional competency (AOPC) or their application to be listed on the social workers register is refused.

The closing date for renewal of registration on the social workers register was 31 May 2014. The current registration status of social workers can be viewed online at www.coru.ie. Renewal Certificates for the coming year are issuing on a daily basis. Social workers who did not renew their registration by the closing date will be contacted over the coming weeks.

Social workers should be able to provide employers a certificate valid to 31 May 2015 or a letter requesting final information dated June 2014. The published register is also available at www.coru.ie.

Yours sincerely
